[10m] Early in the film, this character mocks Ollie’s use of “thus” in his analysis of “My Last Duchess,” despite having never read it. Later, this character submissively agrees to “behave” after embarrassing Ollie during karaoke.

ANSWER: Farleigh Start

[10e] This charming rich boy is Ollie’s best friend at Oxford, and stuns in a white tank top and golden angel wings, though we do wish he hadn’t removed his eyebrow piercing to go home to Saltburn.

ANSWER: Felix Catton

[10h] This character scoffs at the idea they were the focal point of a 1995 Pulp song by saying they have “never wanted to know anything.” The costumes for this character were designed to look more “free-spirited” to reflect her history as a model.

ANSWER: Elsbeth Catton

Somehow there are characters in this movie that Ollie doesn’t think are hot, but we do!

Note to players: two answers required. This man’s excitement over this thing prompts Elspeth to suggest A Midsummer Night’s Dream as the theme for Oliver’s birthday. For 10 additional points, name this stylish item owned by this autistic icon who is mocked for having many friends named Henry and a love of “fancy dress” parties.

ANSWER: James Catton and his suit of armor (accept the dad or father in place of “James”)

<Stella and Haylee>

Bonus 9

In honor of this being the Hot People Packet, we’re bringing sexy back. For ten points:

[10e] This “Prince of Pop” hails from Memphis, Tennessee. His song “Can’t Stop The Feeling!” won a Grammy in 2017. If you still don’t know who this is, you’ll just have to “Cry Me A River.”

ANSWER: Justin Timberlake

[10m] Timberlake takes a character played by Amanda Seyfried hostage and flees to Dayton with her in this film. Harlan Ellison, author of “I Have No Mouth, and I Must Scream,” filed a later-dropped copyright lawsuit against this film for alleged similarities to his short story “‘Repent, Harlequin!’ Said the Ticktockman.”

ANSWER: In Time (you might say he was... Just-in Time, ha)

[10h] Timberlake probably thought his legal troubles were over after In Time wrapped filming in 2011, but just five years later, this performance company sued him for $800,000, alleging that his song “Don’t Hold the Wall” sampled a song from Quidam, their ninth production.

ANSWER: Cirque du Soleil

<Phoebe>

Bonus 10

For ten points each, name some characters who wear an article of clothing that instantly makes any fictional look several times cooler (when real life physics does not apply).

[10e] Note: Colour and article of clothing required. 5up’s turnip mascot is often depicted wearing one of these articles of clothing. In Hi-Fi RUSH, Chai wears one of these articles of clothing with several buttons on it.

ANSWER: red scarf [prompt on scarf]

[10h] Ayano (“uh-yawn-oh”), a character from this mixed-media “project” by Jin (“jeen”), wears a long red scarf as her most recognizable characteristic. This project’s most famous work is a Vocaloid song titled for this kind of “daze” about a boy and a girl who repeatedly die for each other within a time loop in a heat haze.

ANSWER: Kagerou Project [or Kagepro]

[10m] Eren wraps a red scarf around this character’s neck after she is rescued from a group of human traffickers as a child. This character continues to wear that scarf throughout her appearance in Attack on Titan.

ANSWER: Mikasa Ackerman

<Fish>
